The main content area is divided into several sections:

- Fantasy: A sidebar menu with links for Streak, Football, Basketball, Baseball, and Hockey.
- ESPN Sites: A list of external links including ESPN Deportes, Andscape, espnW, ESPNFC, X Games, and SEC Network.
- ESPN Apps: A section for mobile applications.
- Featured Video: A video player with the title "THEY ARE IN TROUBLE!" and a thumbnail showing a man with a red and white face paint. The video is marked as an advertisement and includes a "Learn More" link and a duration of :20.
- Article Snippets: Two article teasers are visible:
 - "A nangover, a new Jersey spa and an ex-Goldman Sachs trader: The story behind the wildest college football bet of the offseason" by David Purdum.
 - "The 20 teams that can make the College Football Playoff" with a sub-headline: "According to the Allstate Playoff Predictor, 20 teams have at least a 1% chance to make the College Football Playoff this season, but of those, only seven at least a 1% chance to win it."
- Bottom Section: A partial view of a section titled "WHAT'S IN STORE THIS SEASON?" with a football icon.

Georgia's dominance, USC's resurgence and ACC chaos highlight a wild Week 1

Sometimes the things we think we know are actually true, like Georgia and Alabama still being dominant and the Pac-12 already losing all its playoff hope in Week 1. But we had our fair share of surprises too.
